Valuable Property For Sale.

FOUR LOTS

SITUATE on the West bank of the Monongahela river, being part of that tract generally known by the name of TROY FARM.

Lot No. 2, contains 65 acres 40 perches—a good proportion of bottom and hill land well timbered; on the hill a barn and on the river a fine orchard of choice fruit-trees with a handsome meadow adjoining.

Lot No. 3, contains 57 acres, also a good proportion of hill and bottom land, rich meadow, elegant sugar camp, comfortable tenant's house and stable, with a spring of fine water convenient.

Lot No. 4, contains 57 acres 120 perches, chiefly rich bottom, all cleared, with sufficient hill land, well timbered.

Lot No. 5, contains 54 acres 110 perches, wide bottom, all under cultivation taking in a portion of hill land covered with heavy timber.

The above lots are elegantly situated, 6 miles from the city of Pittsburgh.—Any persons wishing to attend market with the produce of their gardens would find these lots well calculated for their purpose: the soil luxuriant and productive with a proper exposure, and conveniently situated close on the bank of a delightful stream, by which they could transport their 'vegetable store' to a market where it would command the highest prices.

Or any gentlemen wishing to secure pleasant and healthful retreats for their families during the sultry months of summer, would find the natural situation of these lots such as to admit of any improvement convenience might suggest or the hand of taste direct.

Terms of Sale are as follows.

One fifth of the purchase money to be paid at the time of sale and the rest in five years, bearing interest, to be paid annually and to be secured by a mortgage or otherwise.—Persons wishing to purchase may obtain more particlar information on application to Mr. Samuel Peebles on the premises, or Dunning M'Nair Jr. Wilkinsburgh, who has a diagram of the lots, or on Walter Forward esq. who has also a diagram, or on the subscriber in Greensburgh,

If the lots are not disposed of before the first of April next, they will then be exposed at public sale in the city of Pittsburgh,

—ALSO—

A tract of Donation land, containing 300 acres situate in Mercer county, 6 miles distant from the town of Mercer.

LIVERY STABLE.

(Wood street, between Diamond alley & [illegible])

George Steward,

RESPECTFULLY informs the inhabitants of this city and its vicinity, that he has opened a Livery Stable, where he intends to carry it on in a manner calculated to do justice to himself and accommodate all others who may please to give him a call, having altered his stable expressly for the purpose, which is inferior to none in the place. He also intends to keep good riding horses to hire—calculated for journeys of any length. Having procured careful managers to superintend the business, he will be enabled to give general satisfaction.

Good saddles and bridles in every case shall be furnished, necessary for the comfort of the rider—when thus caparisoned it is presumed that justice will be done to horses, so justly their due.

Terms of hire and other affairs relative to the establishment, made known at the time of hiring.

He has also laid in an excellent quantity of oats and hay, and feed of every description.

Gentlemen committing horses to his care, may rest assured of unremitting attention in evey particular.

POLITICAL REVIEW.

[In the two last numbers of the "New-England Galaxy, and Masonic Magazine," a weekly paper published in Boston, by Mr. Joseph T. Buckingham, and edited with a brilliancy of classic wit and liberal criticism of the first and most distinguished order, we notice a series of letters, addressed from Massachusetts to a friend in Kentucky, on some highly important political questions, which cannot fail of being read with interest and leaving on the mind strong impressions of the able, intelligent and ingenuous character of the author. Our limits are too prescribed to admit the whole of their contents; but the admirable delineation of some of the political portraits, which adorn these letters, claim a notoriety beyond the circulation of a single paper. The principle subject, engaging the attention of the writer, is a manly defence of the object and views of the celebrated Hartford Convention; which, after adducing the most sound and irrefragable arguments in its justification, he still further illustrates by a portraiture of the most eminent of its delegates.]—Gaz.

TRAITS OF POLITICAL CHARACTERS.

The President of the Convention, is a gentleman passed the grand climateric, of easy fortune, courtly manners and literary habits, who occupies a great space in the affections of the people of Massachusetts. He is a sound and liberal politician, who has been urged and prevailed upon to accept a few offices of distinction in the political line, but resigned them as soon as possible, for he had not that sort of ambition, so common with the people of the United States, to shine in public affairs. He was an orator of grace, fluency, sense, and delicacy; one from whom Ames professed to have taken his highest lessons of elocution: and although he spoke wisely and well, yet he seldom gratified his friends by exhibiting his powers, and never without being frequently importuned to join in debate; "Sine vi non ulla dabit præcepta." His ostensible pursuits of late years have been connected with commerce; retired and quiet he has for several years past, since I have been on the stage, been known to the people by the admiration and respect paid him by those in the upper ranks of the intelligent and influential: for his love of privacy is beyond any thing, a Kentuckian can understand from any parallel in his part of the country, as that sort of modesty and love of retirement does not particularly distress the good people west of the Allegheny. I believe he would not have taken a journey to Hartford to have been made without struggle or difficulty Governor General of all New England. It was a sense of duty alone that influenced this man's conduct at this time. No ambition, no love of distinction had the slightest operation upon his mind; patriotism alone was the ruling motive; and wherever he is known, this is generally conceded.

Mr. P. another member of the Convention from Boston, is in the first rank as a lawyer; in more extensive and lucrative business than any other lawyer in New England. His talents are peculiarly fitted for his profession, which he has loved heartily and pursued intensely; but notwithstanding his celebrity here, he is probably not so much known out of New-England, as many of our small folks are. Occasionally he has consented to become a member of our state government, as a senator or state counsellor, but always retreated the first opportunity from these offices. He has repeatedly refused high judicial honours which have been offered him Could a man of such a disposition and so situated, feel ambitious to be a leader in a civil contest? What had he to gain? How much had he to loose! No sudden impulse could have influenced a mind so well balanced, so thoroughly disciplined as his. He could not have been ambitious of distinction in a tumult, for distinction he never sought in quiet times, when they could have been reached by him without exertion or risk. When called upon by his state to act in the capacity of a delegate, he could not refuse without being charged with timidity, which is no part of his character, or endangering the unanimity of his party. He chose to go to this Convention from patriotism, at whatever price or hazard.

Mr. D. who made a conspicuous figure in this business, as indeed he does in every thing in which he engages, was a member of the Legislature at that time, and had proceeded in the most cautious manner in that body, in showing his disapprobation to the measures of the general government. This gentleman's standing in society, his popularity, his eloquence, and activity in politics, placed him in a more conspicuous and responsible situation than any other man in New England. He felt his situation and proceeded with great carefulness. I have frequently known him to risk his popularity, and in fact diminish the number of his friends, by checking the fiery zeal of their bold but crude attempts to do something for the relief of the people. Many who thought his policy tame and cool, to say the least of it, have since thanked him for preventing those hasty steps dictated by the smart of suffering, and the neglect we hourly felt from the national government. At times he was closely urged by the intelligent, sincere, yet overheated politicians in the Legislature of Massachusetts, and found it difficult to keep them from crowding on too fast. This man knew the signs of the times, the genius and disposition of the people of Massachusetts, how much they would bear, when they would flinch, what pressure they would resist, if they did resist. He restrained the leaders when they advanced beyond the ranks, & animated the ranks when they retreated from their leaders. He had nothing to gain & every thing to lose by a civil conconflict. How absurd to suppose he could wish for an appeal to arms, and hazard greater evils to prevent or remove lesser.

The violent and tory county of Essex, as you once called it, seemed to mock their own zeal, if they were determined to resist, by sending to this Convention a cool, cautious, staid sort of man; a black-letter lawyer, wrapped up in the love of his profession, who prides himself in being deeply learned in its technicalities beyond all other men of this country; whose warmest transports of soul have been kindled over a fine treatise on special pleading; who for many years has been out of political life, and whose sentiments on most political questions were doubtful. This man possessed, it is true, considerable political acumen, a great share of honesty and information, and must have been useful to the convention as a living chronicle, a copious index to our political history. His opinions on constitutional questions must have been entitled to great attention and confidence, but he was the last on the catalogue of men, I should have chosen to convey to this high convention the bold and impetuous spirit and high toned feelings of Essex, if she had been stung to resistance. The ice of the poles would have been as good a conductor of the electrical fluid. Did the selection of such a man look like a disposition for civil war?—Could such a man wish to raise a tempest, or plunge into it after it was raised?

ALGIERS.

The late intelligence, that the Dey of Algiers has lost his head, is a proof of the continuance of those immemorial customs among musselmen which ascribe to the ruler all the misfortunes of government. The Dey of Algiers lately strangled, was one of the most able and efficient officers ever at the head of those desperadoes. He was originaly a Jannissary, and advanced himself gradually to the highest offices. At the attack on Algiers by lord Exmouth, an attack, let what will be said about it, which was highly honorable to those engaged in it, the Dey displayed an unconquerable intrepidity.—In the height of the battle, and surrounded by showers of balls, he was seen in a little skiff going from battery to battery, and animating his troops; and, after the fortifications were demolished, the promptness and facility with which he repaired his losses was a strong proof of activity and enterprize.—But on the whole, his reign was unfortunate. He declared war against the United States, and was compelled without suffering to the extent which he merited to abandon his rapacious views and make peace on our own terms. The attack of the British and loss of the Algerine fleet was another misfortune. Then Holland made peace without tribute; and superadded to these degrading events as they are considered, the plague broke out; and all these misfortunes were attributed to the Dey, and his valour and activity could not destroy the superstition of those people, and he was sacrificed. There is however no cause to lament this circumstance; every Dey who is chosen knows full well that if he does not die a natural death, and his administration is not very prosperous he must loose his head whenever the caprice of the Janissaries shall decide on that point.

In the decapitation of a Dey much unanimity generally prevails, though a choice of a successor is somewhat difficult. It is related, that on an occasion of this kind, a compromise took place between the parties, who, having assembled in the square, and not being able to fix on a suitable candidate, agreed that they should leave the place they were assembled at, and the first man they met at a certain place should be the Dey.—This turned out to be a grave digger, who, in vain, represented that he was incapable of filling the throne, that his pursuits were tranquil and unambitious, and he begged hard to be released from the difficulties by which he would be surrounded. It was, however, unavailing; they decorated him with a caftan and turban, & placed him in the seat of power; and the grave digger actually decided justly in all cases and did the best for the people to the extent of his capacity; but as his administration was marked by no peculiar traits—as he was not sufficiently tyrannical, nor the government satisfactorily organised, he was told by a revolutionary party that his power was at an end. He was perfectly content, and acknowledged that his capacity and qualifications were inadequate to the duties, and that he was prepared to resign and return to his old peaceable employment of digging graves. This could not be permitted, and he was informed that the honor of the office would be seriously affected by such a determination, and that he must consent to lose his head; and, contrary to his serious remonstrances, they seized the trembling unfortunate, and strangled him without delay. From a people thus influenced nothing uniform or correct can be anticipated.—N. Y. National Advocate.

STAGE OWNERS.

The following opinion of one of the British courts is copied from a late English paper. It ought to be more generally known than it is, that the same common law exists here, and that similar penalties might be inflicted upon the proprietors of stages who employ drunken, careless, or obstinate drivers.

"At the Liverpool quarter sessions, the recorder made some important observations relative to the proprietors and drivers of publick coaches:—Whatever credit was due to the former for their great exertions, by which individuals were conveyed through all parts of the country, and commercial and political intelligence circulated with unexampled speed and facility, yet it was always proper, and particularly at this time, to remind them of the great responsibility which the law casts upon them: the contract of the proprietors was to carry the passengers with due care and attention; and whenever this was broken, by improper and unskilful driving, a civil action might always be resorted to, and a jury would do their duty by giving large and ample damages. With respect to drivers, the law, as it relates to their conduct, ought to be known and promulgated throughout the kingdom; whenever they drove at an improper and dangerous speed, though no danger should ensue, yet their conduct amounted to a high misdemeanour punishable with fine and imprisonment."

FRENCH SOIREES.

The French Soiree is literally an evening at home. Almost every woman of condition in Paris has a soiree once or twice a week. Some ladies are "at home" every night, or rarely go out except to the court, to the opera, or to the theatres. During the soiree, visits are received and paid, as on other evenings; for the evening is the usual time for paying morning visits in France; and once admitted to their enjoyment, no further invitation is necessary. These little assemblies, given without expence, and resorted to without form, present the state of Parisian society in its most favourable aspect. Neither vanity nor ostentation interfere with their ease and simplicity; there is no gambling, no full dress: the women go in demi toilette; and as, in Paris, illumination is very cheap, and the apartments always well lighted, the whole additional expense of the soiree is included in tea, or some light refreshment, served a little before midnight. Society is therefore not a point of competition, but a source of genuine enjoyment. It never leads to ruinous extravagance; it is supported by no newspaper eulogies; it awakens no rivalry, and gives no heart-burning; and the lady who entertains, does not estimate the pleasure of her party by the number of titles that fill her rooms, nor by the expensive rarities that crown her supper-table; for wit, pleasantry, and good conversation hold an uniform ascendant over pears, and pine apples, chalked floors, and pees at a guinea per quart!

The London Quarterly Reviewers, in a growling criticism on the journal of Lewis and Clark, thus ridicule the uncouth names by which our intrepid travellers designated many of the geographical points in their rout.

"Of all people who ever imposed names upon a newly discovered country, the Americans have certainly been the most unlucky in their choice. Witness, Bigmuddy river, and Little muddy river, Little Goodwoman creek, Grindstone creek, Cupboard creek, Biscuit creek, Blowing Fly creek, cum multis aliis in the same delightful taste. When this country, [yet a wilderness] shall have its civilized inhabitants, its cities, its scholars, and its poets, how sweetly will such names sound in American verse!

"Ye plains where sweet Bigmuddy rolls along,
And Tea Pot, one day to be fam'd in song,
Where swans on Biscuit and on Grindstone glide,
And willows wave upon Goodwoman's side!
How shall your happy streams in after time
Tune the soft lay and fill the sonorous rhyme!
Blest lands! who in your amorous verse will call
On murmuring Pork and gentle Cannon ball;
Splitrock, and Stick Lodge, and Two thousand mile,
White lime, and Cupboard, and Bad humor'd Isle!
Flow Little Shallow, flow! and be thy stream
Their great example, as it will their theme
Isis with Rum and Onion must not vie,
Cam shall resign the palm to Blowing Fly,
And Thames and Tagus yield to great Big Muddy.

TRUTH,

Is indeed the noblest characteristic of man; but we should know how to be discreet and sincere at the same time. He that makes unguarded truth the rule of his life rushes like Isades naked into the ranks of war; the lustre of his moral beauty may for a while suspend the blows of his assailants, and he may by miracle escape unwounded; but the award of prudence is not to be biased by any result, and her voice even in the hour of triumph will pass on him the sentence of punishment.

Dr. Velnos' Antipertesis,
For the cure of Hooping Cough.
A medicine justly entitled to universal approbation, having been used with the most flattering success, in all the hospitals and infirmaries of Europe, and recommended highly by the most eminent of the faculty; is perfectly mild in its operation, and may be given to children with the greatest safety.

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY DECEMBER 5, 1817.

A proposition is before the Legislature of GEORGIA to tax the Branch of the United States Bank established in that place.

The right of the General Government, (says the Georgia Journal) to incorporate a Bank under any circumstances, has been long and ably, though not successfully, controverted; but, for it to invest an association of individuals with the power of multiplying Branches at pleasure in different parts of the Union, is incompatible with the interest, and subversive of the sovereignty of the States. As the constitution gives no such specific power, it is fair to presume, that what the States did not expressly delegate, was prudently reserved for them in the formation of their confederacy. If this authority, as is contended by the advocates of the measure, be derived from the sweeping clauses, "to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises," "to provide for the general welfare of the United States," there is scarcely any power, however dangerous, that Congress may not claim and exercise."

Further of the Harricane in the Wes' Indies.

John Mitchell Esq. consul for the United States at Martinique, thus writes in a postcript dated, October 28th:—"I had closed this on the 20th to be called for next morning; during the night it commenced blowing very strong, and at about one o'clock it became a tremendous gale from N. to N. E.

At day light I discovered much bustle on board the shipping and by eight A. M. every vessel was forced to sea. Had the wind been as is usual, from the Eastward, every vessel would have been driven on shore. We have no account as yet of any vessel that went to sea, of course there is much inquietude; not one could spread any canvas, and many too light, I fear to support the gale—

At Port Royal, Marant Bay and Trinity, every vessel has suffered; nine tenths are either on shore and lost or driven to sea—king's ships and all—The country is laid waste; negro houses all down; chief part of the houses unroofed, lumber of all kinds and provisions will be wanted. The port is opened. At St Lucie, it is worse than here, many more lives lost, and every vessel on shore.

It is computed by Mr. Raffles, late Lieut. Governor of the Island of Java, in his history of that Island, recently published, that from the year 1730, to the year 1752, a period of twenty-two years, the deaths in the city of Batavia exceeded a million of persons, or nearly fifty thousand a year. It is astonishing that any place could supply such a terrible waste of population. We had not imagined that any thing like it had ever occurred, for such a length of time, in any city on the globe.

FROM THE DEMOCRATIC PRESS.

AMELIA ISLAND.—Aury has at length assumed supreme authority, and declared martial law at Amelia. His St. Domingo brigands have triumphed over and put down the Americans, and we may now expect that the island will become a city of refuge for all the runaway slaves from Georgia, &c. While on this subject, we would observe, that the present state of the country embraced in what has been called the Venezuelean republic, is in one particular at least very little understood in the U. States. It is believed by many of the best informed persons with whom we have conversed, that the present struggle will certainly eventuate in the independence of that country, and the independent government will be in the hands of BLACK OR COLORED PEOPLE. General Paez, who is said to command 10,000 cavalry in the province of Varinas, is a BLACK MAN.

EUROPE.

In every quarter of Europe the basis of long peace appears consolidating; war establishments every where on continued decrease; and the arts which support, enlighten and comfort men, increasing. The navies of Europe have almost literally sunk into musqueto fleets, but those vessels which are building for future combats are constructed on plans copied from the American navy yards.

France continues the most interesting part of Europe. The king appears constantly employed in his Cabinet Councils, holding levees, reviewing his troops or distributing benefactions. Wherever he appears in public, he is welcomed with the cries of Vive le Roi. The old French Marshals, particularly Oudinot, continue great favorites at Court. All trials and arrests for sedition has subsided.

A Quebec Paper of the 11th inst. states, that three hundred and three vessels with five thousand three hundred and seventy-five new Settlers have arrived at that port during the past season.

DETROIT, Nov. 14.

Fisheries.—Among the local advantages possessed by this territory, that of the fisheries is by no means the least important.

We are credibly informed that nearly 3000 barrels of * White-fish have already been taken this fall, and many more will be caught before the fishing season closes.—It is a subject of regret that the inhabitants of this territory, who possess the means, do not engage largely in this profitable business, and by that means deter strangers from coming here with their nets, and carrying away that which ought every year to throw considerable sums of money into the pockets of our citizens.

* This excellent fish has in some measure the resemblance of small shad, & weighs about two pounds.

Migration down the Allegheny River.—A gentleman, who was lately at Angelica, informs us, that an inkeeper near that place, being desired to ascertain the number of families which daily passed, on their way down the Allegheny river, had recourse to his books for the nine days next previous, and counted the number of waggons. He found that Two Hundred and Sixty waggons had passed his house within the nine days. This number was of course exclusive of all who passed the house without calling, and of the travellers on horseback and on foot.

To this the Editor will add a fact which fell under his own observation, a few days since on the same road. Business calling him to the village of Hamilton, the point of embarkation on the Allegheny, he fell in with, on his return, about twelve miles this side of the village, near the intersection of the Angelica and Moscow routes, a cavalcade of upwards of twenty waggons, containing as he was informed by one of the company, One Hundred and Sixteen persons, on their way to the State of Indiana. These people were all from one town in the District of Maine. At the inn where they stopped for the night he was informed that sixty people, destined for the same state, lodged there the night previous.

Gen. Farm.

From the New-York Gazette, Nov. 21.

By the arrival of the schr. Pennsylvania, in 24 days from New-Orleans, we learn that the U. S. brig Boxer was wrecked on the South Pass at the entrance of the Mississippi. The specie which she had on board, together with her armament and crew, were saved.

The ship Trident has brought in from Calcutta, a very fine healthy elephant, intended to supply the place of the one some time since wantonly shot, to the eastward. We understand the owners of the ship contracted to deliver this animal here for 8000 dollars; and that 25 per cent insurance was paid on 5000 dollars.

FOGS.—It has been recently ascertained that fogs contain a great portion of water, but not in a condensed state, being kept suspended by the opposed powers by the electric fluid with which it is charged. A convincing proof of this was lately afforded by a curious meteorological occurrence in Westphalia, where the fog being driven by a gentle north-east wind against the trees, the electric fluid was attracted, condensation and congelation took place, and the largest trees were torn up by the roots, by the preponderating weight of ice upon their branches.

There is more truth and good sense in the following paragraph, from the Montreal Herald, than many will be disposed to admit.

"In the United States manufactures never can flourish while wages are so high, and land so cheap; the best proof of this is the wonderful emigration every year, from New England to the western states. These hardy people despise the operations of spinning and weaving, and still more the idea of having a master or employer. Their glory is freedom and independence, which the nature of a vast country points out to them. As to the people of the southern states they are totally indifferent about every thing, but a good market for their rice, tobacco, cotton and indigo. England buys more of those commodities than all the rest of Europe, and in those states scarcely any other goods are imported but English, and some from France, chiefly silks."

Extract of a letter of recent date, from a young Bostonian, now in Valencia, (Spain) to the Editors of the Boston Patriot.

"A few days since I saw advertised in the play bills, in the streets, in large letters, 'WASHINGTON' I did not dream that the name of Washington was known here, and I thought it could not possibly relate to the great man of whom our country is so justly proud: However, to my surprise, I found the comedy truly American. The character of Washington is placed in the most favorable light for virtue, patriotism and honor. The plot is taken from the circumstance of the General's threatening retaliation on his British prisoners, which deterred the British commander from inflicting death on a number of American officers, prisoners of war. The play was well written and excellently performed. During the performance, an illumination scene took place, and in the most conspicuous part of the stage appeared in large transparent letters, "VIVE WASHINGTON!" The act ended in a beautiful dance, the dancers building a temple of laurel wreaths over Washington. I have never seen any thing half so complimentary to the General's memory on our stage. An interesting and novel part is introduced in the comedy, to relieve the more serious. It is a little extraordinary, that the actor who personated the general was about 50, of a tall, commanding appearance, and if he had known Washington, he could not have copied him better. That stern and inflexible manner which was natural to him in the camp, but which gave way to the softest feelings of humanity when his duty did not interfere, were admirably pourtrayed. The play was repeated three nights."

EXTRACT OF A LETTER.

"Calcutta, July 19, 1817.

"The marquis of Hastings, our most noble Governor, has proceeded up the Country, to manage an attack to be made, when the rains cease, on the Rajah of Buitpore, a place of uncommon strength, which resisted the efforts of the army sent some years ago by the Marquis Wellesly. It is probable that they will carry it, for the means are adequate and will not be spared under any false notions of economy."

Origin of the term "Protestants."—When Luther was propagating his doctrines in Germany, the emperor Charles convoked a diet at Spire, whence emanated a decree, denouncing Luther as an heretic, putting him out of the laws, authorizing any one to seize him, and prohibiting any farther innovations in religion, as the progress of the light of the gospel was termed. "Against this decree (says an historian) as unjust as impious, the elector of Saxony, the land grave of Hesse, the duke of Laenburgh, and the prince of Anhault, together with the deputies of fourteen imperial or free cities, entered a solemn protest. On that account they were called PROTESTANTS; an application which has since become common to all the sects, of whatever denomination, that have revolted from the Church of Rome." This took place in 1529, from which the most important consequences and the most bloody persecutions arose.

Writing Made Easy,

ON systematical principles by which a neat and expeditious hand is acquired in a few hours.

Mr. BABE (from Europe) pupil of Mr Jones, original teacher of the new style of writing which has been so much admired in the polite circles, announces his arrival in Pittsburgh, and respectfully solicits the patronage of its inhabitants for a few weeks—in writing only.

His methods are peculiarly calculated to remove the stiffness and formality of school instruction and to give that finish so desirable in writing—His instructions are applicable to all persons between the ages of 14 and 70 years, and in 10 lessons only of one hour each, he reforms the most imperfect characters into neatness, correctness and expedition. Men in business who write imperfectly will do well to call on Mr. Babe, at Mr. Samuel Bryson's, Grant street. Ladies will be attended to at their dwellings. Terms moderate.

VALUABLE LAND,

ON THE OHIO RIVER.

THE subscriber wishes to sell the tract of land on which he lately resided on the Ohio river, Mason county, Virginia.

This land is distant about twenty miles from Point-Pleasant, and about 50 below Marietta—It is bounded by the Ohio river for near three miles—contains fourteen hundred acres, of which upwards of a thousand acres are river bottom, about one hundred and forty acres of the tract is well cleared and under good fence—The buildings consist of a comfortable two story frame HOUSE, stables, &c.—There is on the tract a small bearing apple orchard, and an extensive peach orchard, and a well improved timothy meadow

This land is mostly of first quality, and offers as many advantages to capatalists or stock farmers, as perhaps any on that beautiful river, and may be conveniently divided into small farms.

The title is unquestionable, and the terms will be made known on application to Messrs BEAN & BUTLER, Pittsburgh, Col. ANDREW LEWIS, near Point Pleasant, or to the subscriber

THE HARMONY INSTITUTE

And Seminary for the education of young Ladies,

WILL COMMENCE ON THE FIRST OF SEPTEMBER NEXT

The subscriber very respectfully lays before his friends and the public, the following exposition of the principles, on which this Institution will be conducted.

IN THIS SEMINARY WILL BE TAUGHT

1. ALL the branches of a useful English education, comprising reading, writing, grammra, arithmetic, history, natural history, geographar and the use of the Globes.
2. The Fine Arts, including Botanical and Landscape drawing, the Figure, Vocal and Instrumental music, Sewing and embroidering.
3. The German and French languages.

In the endeavor to cultivate the mind with Science, the amendment of the heart will be particularly regarded, as being the only sure medium of rendering intellectual attainments, useful and profitable, as well as ornamental.

To obtain an object so important to the happness of parents, the future usefulness and respectability of their children, and the welfare od society; the highest respect will be inculcate for the Holy Scriptures, of which a select portion shall be read every day in the public hall.

It is confidently believed that for the acquisition of a liberal education by young ladies—suitable characters have been provided, who will take pleasure in performing their several duties.

Mr. ECKSTEIN of Philadelphia, Professor of the Arts, and an Academician of the Pennsylvania Academy, has accepted the office of principle teacher He will be assisted by ladies of competent qualifications, who will superintend the conduct and behaviour of the pupils.

To those already acquainted with the town of Harmony, little need be said, it is situate in a healthy and agreeable country, twenty five miles from Pittsburgh. Retired from the bustle of cities and large towns, the young ladies will have the more liesure for the prosecution of their studies.

Tuition, Boarding, Washing, Books and Stationary, will be furnished for one hundred and fifty dollars per annum, payable quarterly in advance Beside quarterly examinations there will be a public one every year, of which, timely notice will be given to parents and all who take pleasure in the education of the female mind, in the principles of virtue and solid accomplishments.

Parents or Guardians who may be willing to embrace the opportunities offered by this institution, will please to apply to the subscriber.

Williamson & T. May field's Patent Self-acting Shutter Fasteners.

A constant supply wholesale and retail, may be had on application to the Agents,

HUGHES & TOMKINS,

At their HARDWARE STORE No. 150, Market street Baltimore.

THE Patentees recommend (with a confidence strengthened by the approbation of many respectable Architects and others) this new, neat and useful Fastener; and feel no hesitation in anthorising their agents to assure all such purchasers (if any) as shall not find the article to answer their just expectations on applying it to use, that the money will be promptly returned on a similar return of the Fasteners.

It has decidedly an advantage over the former method of window fastening: being incomparably more elegant, affording greater security to the window when closed, and by its certainty of self-acting, securing back the shutter when pushed open or blown back by the wind, and is cheaper and better than the old method.

 To those of the trade who purchase to sell again, the usual liberal discount will be allowed. The establishment is in its infancy, and with limited capital—therefore all orders must be accompanied with the cash.

Valuable Real estate for sale.

PURSUANT to the last Will and Testament of the late Col. RICHARD BROWN, deceased I NOW OFFER FOR SALE,

The Farm on which he resided,

On the Ohio River, in Holliday's Cove, in Brook County, Virginia.

This Estate consists of about 700 Acres of Land, 250 of which is a rich Island, the remainder principally second bottom and upland; that part of the upland which is not tillable, is covered with timber suitable for furnishing the Island and tillable part with fencing and building timber. There is between 150 and 200 acres cleared and under cultivation, a suitable proportion of which in good meadow land. The buildings consist in two fog dwelling houses and a log barn with under story of stone. It is well supplied with very fise prings of good water.

The situation of this property on the Ohio Rive five miles from the flourishing Town of Steubenville, and in the neighbourhood of several Merchant Mills, Iron Works, &c. renders it a desirable object to a person who would wish to farm extensively, as he would probably at all times find a good market at his door for the produce of his farm. A part of the purchase will be required in hand, and for the remainder a reasonable credit will be given.

Mrs. & Miss Brevost

RESPECTFULLY inform the public, that they have removed their

Seminary for Young Ladies,

to that large and commodious house, the property of Col. O'Hara, on Scotch-hill, corner of 2d and Grant street. The superior accommodations afforded by their present dwelling, will enable them to receive some addition to their number of pupils; and the list of accomplishments which they formerly taught, has received an important accession, in the assistance of a lady and gentleman who are well qualified to give instructions on the Harp and Guitar, and in drawing and painting.

They flatter themselves that by this combination of talent, joined to their long experience in the duties of instruction, the young ladies of the Western country will find in this SEMINARY every advantage possessed by the best similar establishments on the continent.

They cannot conclude on this occasion without renewing to their patrons, their most sincere and lively acknowledgements, for the constant support they have received during the last three yeas, and they pledge themselves that no efforts on their part shall be wanting to merit a continuance

PATENT

Compound Anti Attritio or Antidote,

To Prevent Friction & Wear and Tear,

OF Nail Works, Steam Engines, Shipping, and Boats, whether in building, in use, or laid up; Coaches and Carriages, which will, with one Priming, in good boxes, run 1000 miles, and machinery of every description, whether in wood, iron, steel, or brass, to which one priming in most cases will be equal to fifty applications of the articles in general use, as well for preserving, as saving of time and labor.

TO THE HOSE OF ENGINES,

A good coat put on the inside leather, before closed, will render the leather impervious to the internal water, and make the Hose soft and pliable a matter of no small moment to the gentlemen who are so liberal in their attention.

This Patent Composition will keep its virtue in all climes and seasons. The Patentee has the confidence that when its advantages are known, by experience, it will claim the attention and use of the whole of the United States. He is, therefore, willing to dispose of state or district rights. Good allowance to those who sell again.

Sold in boxes, at 25, 50, 100, 150, 250, and 500 cents each—or by the pound, where large quantities are wanted.

As the various directions for the use of this Compound Anti Attritio, are too lengthy for newspaper publication, the printed particulars will be given with each box, by
